SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

WASHINGTON, Oct 20—The following dis[illegible] is published here to-day

CHICAGO, [illegible] 1879.

[illegible] Merritt's [illegible] I just received that he visited the Indians at [illegible] river on the [illegible] and will go from there [illegible] the Uncompahgre agency where he requests sup[illegible] to be sent. Subsequently your dispatch of [illegible] was sent him with orders to obey the di[illegible] therein given and presume this will stop [illegible] our dispatch should have reached [illegible] the [illegible] Gen Merritt and Gen Crook the de[illegible] commander are at a loss to know what [illegible] to do and so am I. There are 1500 or 1600 men at White river. The road to the Uncompahgre [illegible] over the main range of the Rocky mountains, and is very bad and the danger of being [illegible] by winter snow should be seriously enter[illegible] We went to the White river agency at the [illegible] of the Indian bureau whose agent was murdered and our men were killed and wounded and we are now left in the heart of the mountains with our hands tied and with the danger of being [illegible] in staring us in the face. I am not easily discouraged but it looks as though we had been pretty badly sold out in this business. It is folly [illegible] that the murderer of the agent and Colonel Thornburgh must be punished. How are they to be punished? Who is going to punish them and how long are the troops going to wait at the agency for it to be done? I will direct Crook to throw into the agency all the supplies he possibly can as the only course left open. (Signed)

P H SHERIDAN, Lieut General

Since the receipt of the above dispatch from Gen Sheridan he has been directed by Gen Sherman to withdraw the troops under Gen Merritt and order them to their proper stations leaving at the White river agency only a sufficient number of men to guard the government property. The troops now at White river agency belong to the department of the Platte, and will with the exception of those left at the agency return to their re[illegible] spective stations in that department. A force will be concentrated at some point on the southern Ute reservation to conduct operations against that tribe should they fail to deliver up the parties engaged in the killing of Major Thornburgh. Gen McKenzie com[illegible] manding the 4th Cavalry will probably be placed in charge of the latter force.

Another Dispatch from Gen. Sheridan—He thinks that Ouray Cannot Surrender the Murderers—Parts of the Plan of the Campaign.

WASHINGTON, Oct 20—A telegram from Gen Sheridan dated Chicago Oct 19th, has been received by Gen Sherman which says

I received your dispatch of yesterday last night. Your suggestions in reference to the columns at Pagosa and Alamosa have to some extent been anticipated by Gen Pope. Gen Hatch is at Pagosa, and beyond a column of eight companies of infantry and four companies of cavalry there is now being organized at Garland which is a better point than Alamosa a column of six companies of infantry to which can be added two more companies of infantry and I can also add six more companies of cavalry now at Rawlins station making 19 companies and aggregating at least 900 men. Gen. Merritt had followed the hostiles in the direction of the Uncompahgre agency as he has notified me out turned back on receiving your dispatch of the 13th. Had he gone on it was my intention to have supplied him from the south, by his own request, that there need have been no fears on the part of the interior department regarding his supplies. My telegram related to the pass between Rawlins and White river agency. We now understand this affair in all its bearings, and will not give you any further trouble except to send information as it arrives. I regret that Merritt was not permitted to go on as I have not the slightest belief that Ouray can deliver up the murderers and I fear that valuable time will be lost. After your dispatch of the 13th I directed Crook to send to the White river agency supplies in abundance before deep snows come on and will assume the risk of keeping Merritt with his present force at that point to await further developments. I understand that country pretty well. My last summer's trip gave me a very fair knowledge of the country in the vicinity of the Los Pinos agency and south of that place.

The Chiefs Again in Council—The Women and Children Safe, but Still in the Hands of the Indians.

LOS PINOS, Oct 17, VIA DEL NORTE, Col, Oct 17—A runner has just arrived from the southern Ute agency with a letter from Page to Stanley dated 14th inst with information that another all-day council was held by the chiefs of the southern Utes all uniting and desirous of peace, and requesting that a runner be sent renewing assurances already given. Twenty-four chiefs and head-men were present. The Indians of this agency are all encamped around Ouray's house. Not one report in fifty has a particle of truth and the circumstances are exaggerated beyond reason. The women and children are safe but probably will not be given up till after matters are arranged by the peace commission which is expected here in a week from Washington.

Waiting for Developments.

CHEYENNE, Oct 20—Camp on White river three miles north of the agency Colorado, Oct 17th, via Rawlins, Wyoming 20th—This afternoon Gen Merritt and command returned to this point, orders from Washington being to suspend operations against the Utes and await orders either at White or Bear river, as negotiations for peace are in progress, it being understood that the hostiles have agreed to surrender the warriors engaged in late depredations. It is probable that the combined commands of Merritt and Gilbert will remain for the present at this point although nothing definite is known as to future movements. In the event of peace being established it is altogether probable that a permanent military post will be constructed either at Bear river or the agency.

The Indians Must Go.

WASHINGTON, Oct 20—Inspector W J Pollock telegraphs to the commissioner of Indian affairs from Denver, Colorado, as follows: The governor and leading citizens here unanimously affirm that the Indians must be removed from the state or exterminated by the state if not by federal forces. Confidence, they say can never be restored, and it is only a question of whether the result be attained at once or by slow and tedious warfare.

Relations of the War and Interior Departments on Ute War Matters—A Full Statement from Secretary Schurz with Official Correspondence.

WASHINGTON Oct 20—Secretary Schurz has to-day been asked by many persons whether he thought that the dispatch of Gen Sheridan to Gen Sherman in which the former speaks of Gen Merritt's command as being "tied up" and "sold out" was intended to reflect on the interior department. In response to this question and a number of cognate inquiries addressed to him by representatives of the associated press in an extended interview to-day the secretary made the following interesting statements with which are given the letters therein referred to:

I do not see how Gen Sheridan's telegram can reflect on this department nor do I think his dispatch was intended for publication but since it has been published and the disposition of troops has been made known the rest of the story may properly accompany it. When Gen Merritt was still supposed to have fought his way through to the White River agency I instructed Gen Charles Adams, not the peace commissioner but the special agent of this department, on temporary service chosen on account of his ability and intimate acquaintance with the Ute chiefs, to proceed to Los Pinos agency to strengthen Chief Ouray in his friendly attitude in case the refusal of the government to stop the troops produced excitement among the Los Pinos Utes and then endeavor to bring about the surrender of the hostiles or failing in that to draw the peaceably disposed Utes away from them and thus isolate them. He was to issue a call to the Indians within his reach and inform them that the troops were bound to force their way to White river and would destroy all resistance and the longer resistance lasted the worse it would be for the Indians. On the 14th we received information that the Utes had disappeared from White river that Gen Merritt had proceeded to the agency without resistance and had lost sight of the hostiles. I then instructed Gen Adams to ascertain the whereabouts of the White river hostiles to summon them to surrender or use every possible endeavor to induce the peaceable Utes to give them up and put himself in communication with Gen Merritt and give him all the information he had, together with his opinion of the condition of things. These dispatches were communicated by me to Gen Sherman before they were sent off. Gen Sherman communicated them to Gen Sheridan and Gen Merritt was asked to give credence to what Gen Adams might tell him as he had the confidence of his department. These are undoubtedly the dispatches referred to in Gen Sheridan's telegram. Gen Sherman evidently did not think that by these instructions which were intended, not to arrest but to facilitate and aid Gen Merritt's movements in securing to him information which judging from his own reports he could not otherwise obtain were calculated to "tie up" and "sell out" the troops under command of Gen Merritt. If he had thought so he would undoubtedly have said so to me before sending them off to Gen Sherman as Gen Sheridan might have said so before communicating them to Gen Merritt. When Gen Sherman [illegible] afterwards had received the dispatch from Gen Sheridan published in the newspapers he addressed to me the following letter which is additional evidence that he now, too, [illegible] had not understood my instructions [illegible] agent of this department to stop any movement [illegible]

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE U. S., WASHINGTON [illegible]

[illegible]—DEAR SIR: I have a telegram from Gen Sheridan saying that he has a message from Gen Merritt of the [illegible] he would on the [illegible] move from White river for Grand river at Los Pinos agency but Gen Sheridan supposes that [illegible] starting Gen Merritt will have received your [illegible] dispatch of Oct 13th notifying him of the appointment of special Agent Adams and to be governed in his conduct by his instructions. Do you want Gen Merritt's force about 1000 men to be at White river or at Los Pinos agency? Some one must be [illegible] this question, and as the interior department has charge of the Ute Indians and the military is acting to support the Indian bureau [illegible] managing of Indians I beg you will inform me whether you prefer that the military [illegible] shall be at Los Pinos agency or at White river. Your obedient servant

W T SHERMAN

I received this letter on the evening of the [illegible] and the same evening visited Gen Sherman at his house for the purpose of ascertaining what it meant. General Sherman explained to me he difficulties Gen Merritt's command would have to encounter in crossing the high mountain range between White river and Los Pinos without any wagon road the possibility of being snowed in etc. and also that another force could be concentrated in a short time at Alamosa to accomplish all that was necessary without [illegible] such difficulties in the way. The expression of his views was of course satisfactory to me and I left Gen Sherman with the understanding that I in this sense would officially answer his letter the following morning which I did and here is the answer:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, Oct 18 1879.

General: In reply to your letter yesterday referring to General Sheridan's dispatch in which he expressed his apprehensions as to difficulties likely to attend a movement of General Merritt's troops across the mountain ridge between White river and Los Pinos agencies which dispatch you communicated to me in full at our interview subsequent to the receipt of your letter. I have the honor to say that General Charles Adams special agent of this department will probably reach Los Pinos agency to day or to morrow. As you know he is instructed to ascertain if possible the present whereabouts of the White river Utes and succeed in this to use every effort with the aid of Chief Ouray to bring about their surrender. I may have a telegraphic report from him by Wednesday next. It will probably then appear whether that surrender can be accomplished without the assistance of a considerable body of troops or not. In the meantime I fully agree with the opinion you expressed at our interview last night that Gen. Merritt should not at present undertake a hazardous march across the mountain divide but remain at or near White river and that another body of troops be concentrated at Alamosa to act as the condition of things at Los Pinos and the Southern Ute agency may require. I shall without delay inform Gen Adams of instructions telegraphed by you to Gen Sheridan last night, and direct him to put himself in communication not only with Gen Merritt as ordered before but also with the commander of the forces at Alamosa, keeping both these officers fully advised of the situation of things. Very truly your obedient servant. C. SCHURZ Secy

To Gen. W T Sherman, U S A

From this it will appear that there has been no discord between General Sherman and myself, that there were no instructions from me to stop Gen. Merritt's command that the necessary information to be procured by my agent will probably be on hand before the force assembling at Alamosa will be ready for action and that Gen Sheridan's remark about the "tying up" and "selling out" of Gen Merritt's command while it gives expression to his feelings concerning the difficulties surrounding those troops it cannot be held to refer to any action on the part of this department.

An Insane Man Scalded to Death in a Bath Tub.

NAPA, Oct 20—Last night D B Hove, a native of Virginia aged, 43 years came to his death at the Napa insane asylum by being scalded in a bath tub during the temporary absence of the attendant in charge. The attendant having been obliged to give Hove a washing called to his assistance two inmates who are in the habit of helping the attendants. When Hove was nearly stripped of clothing the attendant heard an outcry in a room near by when he rushed leaving deceased with two inmates and the tub partly filled with tepid water. As soon as he went out, the two men turned on the boiling water stripped off Hove's clothing and put him in the tub. Here he was found a moment after by the attendant who took him out fearfully scalded in the back and sides, the skin peeling off. He lived four and a half hours. The coroner's jury attached no blame to the attendant or officers of the asylum.

MENDOCINO Oct 20—Courtwright was arrested to day at Kibesillah as an accomplice of the outlaws and brought to town. The track showed four at first but that one had left the gang after proceeding a mile or two.

A Shipwrecked Boatman Drowns before the Eyes of a Rescuing Party near Port Blakely.

SEATTLE Oct. 20—Several men cruising on the beach in the vicinity of Port Blakely on Saturday were attracted by the cries of a man in distress and looking in the direction from whence the sounds came, discovered an unknown man clinging to the bottom of a boat a short distance from the shore. Being without a boat the men hastily constructed a raft and put out to his assistance but when within a few feet of the craft the man lost his hold and sank off into the water to rise no more. The boat was taken to the shore and righted up. He had a large new sail sheet and halliards which had been cut away probably after she had capsized with a view to righting her up. Some provisions and cooking utensils stowed away in the bottom of the boat, were also found but nothing to indicate who her unfortunate occupant or occupants were. Parties at Port Madison remember having seen a boat similar to the one found leave that place on Saturday morning with two men in it. It is supposed that the man above mentioned had been in the water several hours and that his companion had perished previous to the discovery of the boat by the parties in question.

After that all was a blank until late next morning when he awoke to find himself seated alongside a log and so badly injured as to be unable to walk. A sheep herder passed by soon afterward but he seemed unwilling to lend any assistance. Mr Reams managed finally to reach his camp by crawling where he lay helplessly until about 2 o'clock that night when James Reames and a companion who had been advised of the affair by the sheep herder, relieved him from his perilous position, after being out two days and two nights.

The Walla Walla Union will have a new office new press and a new dress.

The programme for the fall meeting at the Walla Walla trotting park is being made up.

Cap S R Smith has resigned his position as pilot in the O S N Co's service and commenced to saw ties and bridge timbers at his mill at the mouth of Snake river. The logs are rafted down from the Yakima and Clear water.

Walla Walla Union: The early rains have put the ground in good condition for the plow and hundreds of acres have been plowed and sown with fall grain which, in many fields has already sprouted. The prospect for getting in a large area of fall grain was never better. Experience has taught our farmers that fall grain gives the heaviest yield particularly on the uplands. Put in lots of fall grain and your reward next harvest will be overflowing granaries.

LETTER FROM ASTORIA.

General Grant's Second Visit—The Columbia River Bar, Etc., Etc.

[REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA Oct. 20 1879.

The excitement occasioned by the advent and departure of Gen Grant having subsided Astoria has again resumed the "even tenor of its way." Thinking probably, that his appearance would be the signal for another attack and renewed hostilities on the part of his friends the general secluded himself on board for some time after his arrival down. The younger and less distinguished members of his party having in groups of two or three started off to different parts of our own visiting the different engine houses and such other places as they could find to interest them, he on stepped ashore and with Captain Goodsell as his companion, enjoyed a quiet smoke and ramble over the city. He was easily recognized by everybody but to the credit of Astorians, be it recorded no one molested or made him afraid by any noisy or ceremonious demonstrations. On his return on board he did however, at the request of Captain Gray kindly grant an interview to the venerable W H Gray and his estimable wife, who were introduced also to Mrs Grant and an interesting half hour's conversation was enjoyed having reference to the period of the Whitman massacre and other incidents connected with the early history of Oregon with which Mr W H Gray and Mrs Gray were both prominently identified.

The weather during the last two weeks has been remarkably mixed, hail storms clear sunshine fogs and squalls with an occasional delightful Indian summer day have followed each other in confusion, such as was never known before to the oldest inhabitant. The result of it has been the detention of several grain ships owing to the unsettled condition of the bar. It is necessary that ships drawing from 20 to 22 feet should cross the bar only under the most favorable circumstances. This detention is no source of gain to the owners of the tugs as some have uncharitably surmised. On the contrary many cords of fuel are consumed for which the tugs receive no quid pro quo in steaming down to the bar to watch for favorable opportunities. As THE OREGONIAN truthfully observes in its issue of to day "the business of the Columbia river is destined soon to reach astonishing proportions" and in view of this fact would it not be well for Portlanders and all Oregonians to begin now to agitate the question and earnestly advocate that appropriations be made by the general government having for its object the permanent improvement and deepening of the channel at the mouth of the river. The wealth of a country consists in its exports and not what it imports and it is not too much to say that however vast our productions may become three fourths of its bulk will find its way to the open sea through the mouth of the Columbia river. It is a common saying among foreign ship masters men who have visited every port on the globe that if such a river with such a prospect of a vast carrying trade were in any other part of the world but the United States the mouth of that river would soon be so improved as to render ingress and egress practicable on every side if it cost as many millions of pounds sterling as it would actually require of dollars.

THE WASHINGTON LEGISLATURE.

SPECIAL REPORT FOR THE OREGONIAN

OLYMPIA Oct 19 1879

Nothing has transpired since yesterday to disturb the even tenor of the legislative way. Both houses have passed a busy day. The suggestion embodied in the governor's message that bills should be introduced early in the session is being acted upon with a vengeance. Most of the committees have already work enough before them to fully tax their time yet the cry is still they come. Some will fail of passing, being rather the offsprings of personal conviction than sound legislation but the majority are long needed laws or amendments to faulty ones. The present legislature is pre-eminently a practical and painstaking one and the disposition to perform consistent work and to conform as nearly as practicable to the wishes of the people is evident.

Council.

Day introduced C B 11 an act relating to liens. Dunbar C B 11 an act to amend section 4, chapter 3 laws "An entitled an act to regulate the practice and proceedings in civil actions."

Tibbs—B [illegible] entitled An act to provide for the scaling and measurement of logs and for the formation of lumber districts. No more important bill has been introduced this session nor one touching a more vital interest in the territory. The mode of scaling practiced by the mill companies has long been a by word and reproach for which there was no redress. This bill divides the territory into 12 lumber districts and provides for the appointment of twelve lumber inspectors to be nominated by the governor, who are under heavy bonds and who can be removed upon petition by any six master loggers of his district whose duty it is to scale and keep accurate records of all logs sold in that district which scale is to be the basis of all scales made, as regards quantity and is to be taken as presumptive evidence in all the courts of the territory, all persons feeling aggrieved having redress upon the official bond, and no sale or contract for sale of logs being valid except as between the original parties, unless the same have been so scaled. The compensation to be 5c per M. The appointment by the governor of these inspectors instead of their election obviates the danger of having the companies use their almost unlimited power to elect whom they chose. I have been thus full in describing this bill knowing its importance to our people and the interest they have in its passage.

Day C B 13 an act declaring all public highways county roads.

PRESENT POLITICAL PHASES

Mr Blaine spoke at many places in Ohio during the recent political campaign. All accounts show that wherever he appeared his presence created unequalled enthusiasm. Such crowds as flocked to hear him are rarely found at any other speaker on either side. A few months ago there was a procession three miles long, which contained over 1000 wagons. At Canton Newark and other places the railroads ran special trains, and delegations came from all parts within thirty miles. At Canton there were delegations from every town in the surrounding counties. The meetings were in short the greatest held in Ohio since 1840, and the enthusiasm created by Mr Blaine's speeches surpassed anything witnessed since the speaking of Thomas Corwin. At Canton there was an outdoor meeting described as by far the largest ever held in the state. A report says that politicians who attended this meeting were filled with amazement at the acres of voters and the miles of procession. "Evidently, says the report in the New York Tribune, no man has stirred the masses of Ohio for a long time like the brilliant leader of the Maine republicans. The same report says that at Canton such mottoes as these were borne in the procession: "Eastern Ohio is for Blaine of Maine. It's all the same for 1880. Welcome to our next president." "For president in 1880 James G. Blaine." This in a state which will have a candidate of its own next year is certainly significant. It does not, however, mean that Ohio will not support John Sherman in the national convention but it shows that Mr. Blaine's popularity is very great and that he is the first choice of many republicans in Ohio. It is certain that among chief causes of overwhelming republican victory in Ohio was Mr. Blaine's canvass of the state.

New York is now the center of political interest. John Kelly and his fellow democrats who oppose Tilden and are resolved to strike at him by crushing his man Robinson, are not content with making a fight merely in the city, but have extended their organization to nearly all counties in the state. Kelly says he has assurances of a very large vote outside of the city, and his statements are supported by many incidents, among which [illegible] the formation of numerous Kelly clubs in different parts of the state. A short time ago the anti Tilden democrats of Oswego county carried the regular democratic county convention and [illegible] resolutions in favor of Kelly. The [illegible] figures which in his judgment [illegible] the republicans will carry the state. In 1876 Tilden carried New York by 32,742 votes over Hayes. But his majority was 53,000 in the city alone. Since now Kelly is likely to take the larger part of the democratic vote of the city, it is not certain that Robinson will have any majority in the city over Cornell. Senator Hill of Georgia has been in New York, laboring [illegible] and entreating tearfully for democratic harmony in the state, but advices say he has returned to Washington greatly discouraged; that he discredits the claim of the Robinson men that they will gain as much from the republicans as they will lose [illegible], and that no considerable number of republicans will abandon their ticket merely because the democrats are split up among themselves.

Advices from Washington say also that there is much gloom and despondency among southern democrats there. They admit fully the depressing effect of recent elections on democratic prospects next year. They now see the folly of the extra session, as it has made tens of thousands of votes against their party. [illegible] they are now compelled to acknowledge, namely, that a solid south has produced a solid north. One good effect of the elections is already noticeable. Southern journals and politicians, [illegible] that the solid south is a political [illegible] the thunder of secession, are beginning already to discuss the propriety of dissolving the solid south and thus removing the political menace that makes a solid north. This would be wise, [illegible] service to the democratic party in the coming presidential election. The democratic dilemma is peculiar and extreme. If the south be held solid by the merciless despotism which now forbids political opposition, the result will be a solid north; and if this despotism relaxes [illegible] three districts in the south, five or six states of that section will inevitably be lost to the democratic party. The man who takes a dog by the ears, or he who finds himself between the devil and the [illegible] is hardly in a more serious predicament.

PROTECTION AND SOCIALISM

A writer in the October International Review discusses the phenomena presented in the almost invariable co-existence of socialism and protection in the same countries. The fact is one which has frequently occupied observers [illegible] It is an undeniable and should be an instructive fact that both socialism and protection grow in the same soil. The common conditions for the existence of both are to be found in the doctrine of state aid and governmental interference. If government is to take care of certain interests through protective laws, the inference is ready that it should "assume control of all the capital of the country, and superintend labor with employment." The essence of socialism [illegible] state aid, and protection is but another form of the same idea. It is truly said that "even if protection be somewhat more respectable and successful in its methods of influencing public opinion its claims are based on the same ground is with the socialist demand that the state should give every day laborer work at a satisfactory price." It would, indeed, be unjust to charge the spread of socialism on protection alone, but the fact that it is countries of governmental interference which are at once the homes of protection and socialism is a fact to be taken into account by those who know that every popular movement springs from antecedent causes, and that ideas of common origin and near akin naturally fall into groups together. The growth of socialism in some of its forms has been of recent years very remarkable among us. People have seen the interference of the state practised in so many forms, and the aid of the state invoked in so many ways that protection, employment and subsidies from now an entirely familiar system. The progress of this system may be noted by many indications. It was not so very long ago when the power of the government to grant subsidies or to make appropriations for public improvements was denied by a large part of the people, and it was extremely difficult to vote any scheme of the kind through congress. How is it now? Without dissent or opposition all members of all parties in congress unite to vote away money to help various parts of the country. The annual distribution is, of course, becoming larger and larger. Every part of the country wants its share and the distribution is made without much regard to real uses and needs. Since it is conceded that there are enterprises in certain localities which must be assisted by the government, it is thought nothing more than fair that there should be something like a general distribution of favors; and the result of the whole system, including the policy

Of all the many errors which time has corrected, [illegible] the belief that cotton could not be raised [illegible] the southern states without slave [labor] [illegible] And this supposed fact was presented as a chief proof of slavery. But now the southern states are producing with free labor a million bales more of cotton a year than they ever did with slave labor and with a facility that have been better organized and the various social and political [illegible] which have [illegible] the south shall have ceased so that security and stability [illegible] where left the contrast between the results of free and slave labor will be [illegible] will more marked. Freemen can do anything better than slaves as the south has proven already.

The capital stock of the Northern Pacific railroad company is divided into 510 000 shares of common stock and 490 000 shares of preferred stock. The latter are receivable at par for the company's lands east of the Missouri river. There have been so received and extinguished [illegible] 000 shares, leaving 438 000 shares issued and to be issued. Of this the company owns 80 000 shares of which 20 000 have been appropriated for the construction of the Missouri division and 44 000 for the Pend Oreille division. Philadelphia quotations of latest dates put the preferred at 53 and the common at 21, both descriptions very firm.

The principal establishment in the United States for making paper of wood is at Holyoke Mass. The wood comes to the mill in sticks much like cordwood used for fuel. It is reduced to pulp by powerful machinery, and converted into news and book paper. Poplar is the wood mostly used though paper made from spruce has more fibre than that made from poplar. But spruce is harder to reduce to pulp and but little of it is used. The poplar trees in New England have given out long since and the wood is now brought from Canada.

The Denver Tribune in the midst of the Indian scare, shouted "Oh for an hour of Grant!" apparently forgetting that the Indian peace policy was a prominent feature of President Grant's administration and utterly oblivious to the fact that two hours and a half of Grant would have made no difference in the situation of affairs in Colorado. There have been Indian troubles of more or less magnitude under almost every administration from Washington to Hayes and at no time more serious than during the hour of Grant.

Five million dollars' worth of French gold (twenty-franc pieces) was received at New York by the steamer Canada the other day. It was the largest shipment of gold that ever crossed the Atlantic. The gold was sent at once to Philadelphia where it will be converted into half-eagles, which is better business for the mint than to be coining another daddy collar.

Last evening the mayor nominated and the common council promptly confirmed Mr S G Skidmore for police commissioner. The appointment is a good one. Mr Skidmore is a man who will act upon a sound and independent judgment and solely with a view to the public interests. The appointment will give general satisfaction.

Tyner, assistant postmaster general told a Chicago reporter that he never felt any fear of the Utes. He had a large escort all selected for skill in the use of the rifle, and it is presumed they were not under orders to hold their fire until attacked.

A car load of salmon eggs from the S[ixth] Cloud river in Northern California arrived in Chicago the other day, on the way to Washington. The car contained 6 500,000 eggs, which will be distributed in the streams in all parts of the eastern states.

PORTLAND BETHEL NIGHT SCHOOL.

This enterprise under the auspices of the Portland Seamen's Friend Society commenced operations two weeks since and affords facilities to those who wish to improve their evenings in the different elementary branches of study.

To meet the demands of those who desire to take up the study of languages and higher mathematics the services of Professor John Murphy A M have been secured. This gentleman is a sound scholar and his method of imparting instruction is simple, clear concise in short, most EXCELLENT. He is a Master of Arts Ex Sizar Scholar and Ethical Honor Man of Trinity College Dublin. REV R S STUBBS, Chaplain Portland Bethel.

The following Testimonials are a strong guarantee of the gentleman's literary ability and qualifications to teach. Persons wishing to join the night school are informed that the [illegible] and advanced classes will be held from [illegible] M in the Bethel corner of Third and D streets. For particulars enquire of CHAPLAIN STUBBS.

Extracts from Testimonials to Professor John Murphy

Mr John Murphy has been resident assistant master in this institution for several years. He was transferred to my charge in August 1868 with an excellent character. I have found Mr Murphy faithful diligent painstaking and efficient as a teacher in Latin Greek and Mathematics. I have found him a man of the most scrupulous integrity of most affable intercourse of gentlemanly thought and Christian principle, and I shall be always rejoiced to hear of his prosperity etc etc.
HENRY CARR, M A, Principal Ballinasloe College

UNIVERSITY MOUND COLLEGE, San Francisco Oct 9 1877.
Mr John Murphy M A, has been an instructor in this institution for nearly two sessions. He is a gentleman of high scholastic attainments having been a sizar and an honor man of Trinity college Dublin. He has had large experience as a teacher both in the classical and English departments. * * * As the best proof of my confidence in him as a teacher, I may state that he has been the tutor of my brother who is preparing for the University of Cambridge England and that I am entirely satisfied with his work in this matter as well as in his classes. JOHN GAMBLE, Principal.

Mr John Murphy entered the University of Dublin in June 1858 * * * Among the students of the university generally his attainments as a scholar were always spoken of as of an unusually high order. As to his courses in art and theology though assistant teacher in the missionary college, Ballinasloe, for nearly the whole time, he succeeded notwithstanding in obtaining highly creditable marks at all his undergraduate examinations—ethical honors twice in succession in his senior year, and recommendation for the prize at the general examination of the junior divinity year. His moral character and conduct during his entire university course were perfectly unexceptionable and exemplary and his steadiness, industry and perseverance all that could be desired.

THE MECHANICS' FAIR.

BRILLIANT OPENING LAST NIGHT.

Magnificent Appearance of the Decorated, Illuminated Pavilion.

ADDITIONAL LIST OF EXHIBITORS.

Sharp Practice on the Managers, Etc., etc.

In connection with our fair now opening some remarks on the art of exhibiting will be in place. These, as a journal of science and invention says, are the days of exhibitions. The country fair and cattle show have expanded into state and international exhibitions. It has become recognized as an axiom that exhibitions are advertisements and advertisements are new business. The first world's fair at London was a vast enlightenment for the manufacturing nations. It showed what each could do, and made the starting point for a prodigious race for the world's trade. The centennial was the greatest advertisement this nation ever received. In like manner, the Paris exposition was an immense advertisement for France, Germany, Austria, Russia and the smaller nations of Europe. It was known that England could manufacture; the exposition proved that they also were manufacturing states, each after its own manner. It likewise advertised the advertisement we received at the centennial.

It is said these exhibitions do not pay, but the fact remains that they do create new business. For this reason they are likely to be often repeated and in some places to become permanent institutions, designed to exhibit, as it were, the daily progress of invention, improvement and discovery.

It is a rule in business that if you have anything to sell it must be advertised. It must be shown in the shop window or the newspaper, or the buyer will never know of its existence, and certainly will not buy it. Certain things, like food or clothing people seek whether advertised or not; but these things are always in such abundance and variety that the buyer usually purchases what he sees in preference to what he wants and does not see. Exhibitions are simply advertisements, and it may be worth the while to look at them from the buyer's point of view to see how they may best help the inventor, manufacturer and dealer.

Suppose the exhibitor has some single article or tool, a new style of scissors, for instance, and he wishes to get the greatest possible return for the advertisement. The usual way is to display the scissors arranged in geometrical patterns on a black ground, with the warning, "Please not touch," or even in a glass case, so that the people cannot touch whether they please or not. All this shows the exhibitor is profoundly ignorant of human nature. As a general rule, scissors do not arrange themselves in geometrical patterns, and such an arrangement is a distraction and an impertinence. Does the exhibitor wish to show his scissors or his skill in arranging them in fancy patterns? The patterns distract the attention from the chief point, which is scissors, and therefore they are an impertinence. In the Tower of London the guides point out to the visitors that the guns are arranged as flowers, feathers, and other fantastic designs; while, after all, these patterns are nothing, and only serve to take his attention from the real things—guns.

The dismal legend "Do not touch" has been the bane of many an exhibition. The only way we have of recognizing the outside world is through the senses, and touch is one of them. To forbid the use of this sense, except in the case of fragile goods, is simply to reduce the benefit of the advertisement. The coming scissors-maker, bent on showing his new and valuable style of scissors, will arrange seats before a large table, and on the table he will place dozens of his best scissors with an invitation to all to see, handle and try them freely. He will provide cloth or other material, on which the scissors may be tried, to show how beautifully they fit the hand, how easily they work. Behind the table he will place an attractive young woman to show the scissors, to explain their advantages. This young person will have abounding patience, a lively tongue; will be modest, but bright; and have a profound belief in the value of these particular scissors. The people ... pleased with the winning manner of the attendant and charmed with what they can touch and see with freedom, will desire to own and keep such very superior scissors. All right. "The price is so much—help yourself." Of course, some scissors will be dulled, and some may be lost or injured. What of that? Charge it to advertising, for it will make a good return.

The attendant must be, of all things polite, attentive with inexhaustible patience and good nature. If to these can be added an attractive person and winning manners so much the better. Your wise exhibitor knows men and women, and he wisely uses their innocent liking for good looks and pleasant address to his own advantage.

THE OPENING.

The whiz of a rocket at the corner of Second and Market streets at half-past six o'clock last night announced that the second exhibition of the Mechanics' Fair Association of Portland was begun. The great doors were thrown open, the water was turned on at the fountain, the throttles of the engines were opened, the machinery started, the Washington Guard Band played a stirring march and visitors began to pour in. The most surprising feature of the pavilion, and one which favorably impressed all comers, was the brilliancy with which it was lighted. From the ceiling six immense reflectors, each having 40 jets of gas, shed a more than sun-like luster on the scene below and aided by a row of light chandeliers along either side of the gallery and main floor, illuminated the building to the brightness of day. The decorations of flags, bunting, evergreens and flowers, which had been used at the ball of the Grand Army of the Republic remained, and were beautified by additions from numerous exhibitors.

Above the grand entrance on Second street, was an arch of seventeen gas jets surrounded by ground glass globes bearing the inscription "Mechanics' Pavilion." A full description of the dimensions, general appearance and cost of the pavilion was published some time ago in THE OREGONIAN and a repetition at this time is unnecessary.

The various displays are in good order, and each exhibitor seems to have used his best endeavors to outstrip his neighbor in extent of goods shown and tastefulness of arrangement. This rivalry between exhibitors has made the displays larger, more varied and more numerous than last year. The art gallery particularly is a grand improvement over last year and will be fully described hereafter. The following are a few of the exhibits on the main floor:

KOCH, MANSFIELD & LASHIER.

Show a number of single and double door fire and burglar proof Macneale & Urban safes, comprising express, railroad, bank and office styles, from small No. 2's to great No. 22's; samples of Buffalo counter and platform scales, with plain and patent combination beams; also a perfection oil tank. The exhibit is in charge of Mr. R. N. Williams.

THOMPSON, DE HART & CO'S

Exhibit occupies a large space on the north side. On the walls are arranged in good taste circular, crosscut and hand saws, axes, carpenters tools and garden implements of every variety. A large show case is filled with cutlery, revolvers and fine locks and about the railings are scores of spokes, wheels, clothes wringers, fluting irons, etc.

GOLDSMITH & LOEWENBERG

Show a number of cooking, heating and parlor stoves for both wood and coal, and an immense hotel range of their own make; also two hand some bronzed iron vases, and an assortment of granite iron ware and stove furniture.

FLECKENSTEIN & MAYER

Have a pyramid fourteen feet high, covered with bottles of A A A Old Valley whisky, Rock and Rye, the celebrated Damiana bitters, Imperial, Eclipse and private Cuvee champagnes, eight varieties of bitters, choice port and sherry wines, and Anheuser bottled St. Louis lager.

MOLSON & SON

Show from their brewery hundreds of bottles of beer for export and present use; various brands of porter a pyramid of kegs and a shield of faucets, from their rope works a stack of rope reaching to the ceiling, from 3 16ths of an inch to three inches in diameter; also samples of Manilla hemp, open and in bales.

WM. PFUNDER & CO.

Have a splendidly arranged pyramid composed of bottles of their Oregon Blood Purifier, and a show case containing choicest toilet articles, some ivory sets in satin lined cases being the finest ever shown here.

THE ROYAL SOAP CO.

Show piles of boxes of their celebrated kitchen, borax, condensed princess savon, laundry, chemical olive extra, long bar, castile, fancy toilet, and other brands of soaps. An artistically stuffed owl, the "silent partner" in the concern, occupies a prominent position among the boxes.

H. ACKERMAN & CO.

Have a large upright case filled with silverware, bronze clocks, samples of China and fancy vases. Above the case is a large rack containing toilet sets and toys.

The display of musical instruments is unusually large and occupies the entire west end of the gallery.

The following is an additional list of exhibitors since yesterday's report:

GENERAL NOTES.

A "gouge" has been practiced on the managers, which under the rules they cannot stop. Each exhibitor is entitled to free admission during the fair, and when it became generally known scores of women ransacked garrets and closets for mottoes, card baskets and other banished, out-of-date gimcracks, and brought them in for "exhibition" simply to get a ticket. There are many worthy articles in the ladies' department, which were prepared with much toil and expense, and they should not have been belittled by trifles, still less should the managers have been bilked out of admission fees.

A very sensible rule has been adopted forbidding canes, umbrellas and parasols to be carried into the building; but the managers should provide a person to care for them, and not put visitors to an additional expense of 25 cents for having them checked.

The Washington Guard Band furnished excellent music during the evening and added no little to the enjoyment of the numerous visitors. But the worst that had been feared, come to pass. At six minutes past eight they played "Nancy Lee."

If exhibitors had heeded the instructions of the superintendent, and had remembered the announcement in the local papers, to have their tickets stamped at the proper time, they would have avoided tedious, annoying delays at the doors last night.

Use Crown Imperial Straight-cut Tobacco.

The two headed lady and the midgets are still to be seen at 128 First st. Admission, 25c.

COMMON COUNCIL.

ADJOURNED MEETING, OCT. 20, 1879.

Last evening at an adjourned meeting of the council was held in the chamber at 7:30.

His Honor Mayor Thompson in the chair, R. L. Durham, auditor and clerk and Chief Besser in attendance.

The following members were present: Gerdes, Keller, Nicklin, Opitz, Payne, Simon, Stolte, Watson and Weber.

Minutes of the last meeting read and approved.

PETITIONS.

From M. F. Burrell and others, asking to have the line of Second and North Second streets changed; the petition was filed for the present and the first meeting of the council in December fixed as the time for considering the subject matter of the petition.

"Miss Millie Chrissy," the two headed lady, is a perfect little gem, or gems, or a gem and a half, we don't know which. She sings in one or two voices very sweetly, and in dancing we never saw any one more graceful.

There are a lot of people in Portland, as elsewhere, always ready to strain at the smallest gnat and swallow the biggest camel who will doubtless put the "two headed Nightingale" down as outside the pale of ordinary humanity. If this prejudice should carry any so far as to lead them to avoid her, they alone will be the losers.

D. W. Prentice & Co. have just received the last invoice of a new and select stock of sheet music, comprising the latest and best music from large publishers both in Europe and this country. Hopes of good weather dashed rudely to earth.

A few indictments have been found by the grand jury.

Littered sidewalks. Too much "sere and yellow leaf."

The steamer Dayton is in dock undergoing some repairs.

Things livening along the docks. Number of vessels in port.

The prevailing paradox—Mechanics' Fair—weather unfair.

The Mechanics' pavilion is the chief attraction among all classes.

Grant will reach San Francisco to-day—if Neptune is propitious.

The prevailing moisture will interfere with the street improvements.

Freight trains on each side of the river are bringing in large quantities of wheat.

Several handsome views of the decorations of the city have been taken by Mr. Abell.

Tax time looming up in the near future. Tax roll is now in the hands of Sheriff Norden.

The Chinese "hoo doo" continues with an ardor which the prevailing dampness fails to lessen.

Canes and umbrellas will not be admitted to the Mechanics' pavilion, even if they have tickets.

Only a few flags flap indolently in the wind, which serve to remind us that Grant has come and gone.

The new large three-story buildings on Third and Alder are under roof and the brickwork is finished.

The steamship Oregon carries away 100 tons of flour to California, besides a quantity of wheat, wool and hops.

Present appearances indicate that the new railroad ferry boat is soon to take her first bath. The ways are nearly completed.

WM. SCHEFFLER'S ST. HELENA

SANITARY, VACUUM DISTILLED GRAPE BRANDY AND GOOD OLD EDGE HILL WINES.

Mr. Scheffler is sole proprietor of the principle known as the vacuum process of distilling, by which the fusil oils are left with the residue and not incorporated with the brandy, leaving it pure and free from all deleterious substances which does and must exist in all alcoholic liquors distilled by the usual process of boiling heat. California Physicians have pronounced their preference of it to all other. Doctor Cox government revenue officer at Cincinnati, Ohio, says in his report, that after ten years' of close investigation he can safely say that very few, if any, pure wines or brandy are exported from the Old Continent to this. He has found none in his many analyses—that all are doctored before leaving France. The French Consul at Buenos Ayres writes home to his government that so much complaint is made there of the appearance of litharge and other dangerous drugs in all their French wines, that there is great danger of losing the trade of the Argentine States. Other proofs could be cited were it necessary, to prove the superiority of the best class of California wines and brandy. Orders from responsible parties, addressed to Wm. Scheffler, or Geo. H. Beach, St. Helena, Napa county, Cal., will receive prompt attention.

BEACONSFIELD'S BUNCOMBE.

The Great Apprehensions of the United States that they Cannot Compete with Canada.

The Premier Receives Information from "Reliable Sources" Which is Very Far from the Truth.

[Full Text from the London Times.]

We hear every day that it is impossible to compete with America. There may be other causes which have prostrated our energy at the present moment; but I will not give any decided opinion on that matter. It is a singular circumstance that at the moment the greatest apprehension is felt in the United States they cannot compete with Canada [Laughter.] The taxation is so high, the rates of wages are so high, that it is impossible, according to some of the best American authorities, that they can any longer continue to successfully compete with Canada. What is the position of Canada? If we are to be fed by Canada, it is at least satisfactory that we shall be fed by our own fellow-subjects; but let us look for a moment at the situation of Canada, which is most peculiar. Since the surrender of the Hudson Bay Company and the settlement of their affairs, the Dominion of Canada became possessed of what I might almost describe as an illimitable wilderness, and a wilderness of fertile land. Now, it is a peculiar circumstance, but to be noted, that the Dominion of Canada is not in favor of peasant proprietorship. What the Dominion of Canada is anxious for is a great yeoman class. It has legislated with that purpose. Its legislation is now an influence for that purpose, and let us see what is their legislation. Every ... man, every man of fair character who comes to Canada has a right to apply to the government agent, to claim and obtain what is called a quarter section of land. The quarter section of land consists of 160 acres; he receives those 160 acres on condition that at the end of three years he will reduce them to perfect cultivation, and that in the interval he will raise a substantial and real building upon the land. At the end of those three years the government inspector visits the allotments. If it is found that the farmer has fulfilled the conditions, that he has completely cultivated the 160 acres and raised the necessary buildings, he is permitted to receive an equal quantity--that is to say, another quarter section of 160 acres--on the payment of $1 an acre, and no greater payment, even if the value of the land in the interval had greatly increased. You will observe from the first moment that this is not a scheme of small peasant proprietorship; it is not likely that a man will be able to reduce 320 acres to cultivation and put buildings on the land through his own efforts. He must begin and proceed with hired labor. What is hired labor in Canada? Hired labor is not less than hired labor in the United States. The rudest laborer will get [illegible] a day, and a skilled laborer, 16s or 18s. The first thing that the new yeoman does--what I say I say on the highest authority--is to calculate the value of his freehold. The value of his freehold depends on the amount he has to pay those six years in hired labor, in buildings, and the amount he paid for the last quarter section; and at 4 per cent he writes off interest. What is that but rent? Now, there is another very curious circumstance which I will venture to mention on this occasion, because I have ... an authority on the subject as can be conceived, and that is that the sudden cultivation, years ago, of the extreme western states of the United States, which first, I think, alarmed this country and drew its attention to it, and, no doubt, affected prices--that in that country the proprietors, which was extreme at the commencement, has been reduced one third, generally speaking, and in some provinces one-half, and that the chief pioneers who advanced so greatly the cultivation of the extreme western states of the United States have, in a great degree have sold, their farms, and have sold them, allow me to say, at $30 and $40 an acre, showing as an essential thing that there was a basis of rent included in the arrangement in separable from the tenure. They have sold their farms, and they are now repairing to the illimitable wilderness of Canada. You will ask me what is my inference? My inference is a practical one. It may not be an interesting one, it may not be a satisfactory one; but I think you will, on reflection, deem it a wise one--that where you are, so far as foreign competition is concerned, it is wise not to take--I speak to the occupier and the landlord equally--it is wise not to take precipitate steps. But take care that you do not conclude that that is permanent which is only transitory. Although upon that subject I gave no opinion; because I think it would be presumption in any one of us to give an opinion; but still I feel convinced that where you have to deal with new circumstances, that where you find those of so transitory a nature that the very land which four or five years ago, by its extraordinary produce of fifty bushels an acre, affected the market in England and frightened all those who are competent to think, to ponder and to form an opinion on the subject, it is wise, when you see circumstances so transitory that the very place of competition is doubtful, and when you hear that Canada expects completely and successfully to beat the United States from the European markets, it is wise for us not to take any precipitate steps. [Loud cheers.] I would not too curiously inquire into the question of the competition of America, and I will tell you why. I have had an opportunity lately of some conversation on the subject of one who may probably be considered the highest living authority on such matters, which are almost as political, I may say, as statistical, and he told me that he was quite perplexed after the deepest and most minute inquiry as to what would be the result to Canada of nearly 200,000,000 of the acres of the wilderness being gradually brought into cultivation. He said he saw some who believed, and he shared in that opinion, that, under all circumstances, the market of the United States would be destroyed; but as regards Canada itself, he said, if the influx of population were to go on as it is going now--but that we cannot expect--in consequence of those fertile acres being placed at their disposal, he could not tell what might be the consequence. That population would demand itself not only sustenance, but extravagant and extreme sustenance, as always happens in California when even money is made quickly; and for his part he would not be surprised, with the ... character of humanity in the United States, if that wilderness which now so alarms us is not soon occupied by consuming millions. Therefore, I say that it is not wise, at this moment, to attempt to take too precise consideration the influence of these markets. When that influence is ascertained it will be recognized, and we must act upon it, but we ought to take into consideration the influence of fruitful seasons in this country. This is a subject which we cannot avoid which is fatally and painfully precise. It has had an effect upon the condition of the farming class that never was anticipated and never could have been wished by the owners of land. We have, alas! heard that their interests were identical; that between the landlord and the tenant there were feelings of regard and affection, and I have always had a most solemn and sincere belief in their operation, but if ever there were a case in which that sympathy should be shown, it is the present. It would be not merely a great danger for ourselves, but it would be a great danger for England, that the farming class should be reduced either in influence or in numbers. [Cheers.] I would make one more remark upon the position in which we are placed with reference to the want of precise information as to the effect of American produce on our position in England. I may remind you that we have, by a royal commission, sent to the United States and Canada, two men of your own class, men of considerable ability, men who have had the advantage of enlightened opportunity in the house of commons for many years to become acquainted with those principles on which a state ought to be governed. These two men--two great ornaments of the farming class in this country--are visiting America, and I await with confidence and interest their communications.

SPECULATION.

Since the creation it is estimated that 27,000,000,000,000,000 have lived on the earth. This sum divided by 27,864,000, the number of square miles, gives 1,314,522,186 to a square rod, and 5 to a square foot. Suppose a square rod be divided into 11 graves each grave would contain 100 persons. But this is speculation, and of no benefit to the 1,000,000,000 people that now exist, 500,000,000 of whom are invalids, 33,000,000 dying each year. What they most want are the facts concerning Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines. For years his Golden Medical Discovery has been the standard remedy for the cure of all scrofulous, throat and lung diseases, while for over a quarter of a century Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has been unrivaled as a positive cure for catarrh. The testimony of thousands of ladies has been published, certifying that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively cures the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women. For full information see the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, an illustrated work of over 900 pages; price (post paid) $1 50. Over 100,000 copies sold. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

Although there is a temporary weaker feeling in the wheat market, the causes on which the recent rise was based still exist, and it is generally thought that the market will recover in a short time. This is the opinion merely of a large number of people more or less posted in the trade, and not a prediction of ours. There however appears to be good reason for the opinion, as the requirements for foreign wheat of European countries are unprecedentedly large, being estimated at 295,000,000 bushels, while the countries from which the supply is to come it is believed will be able to furnish only 258,000,000 bushels, leaving a deficiency of 37,000,000. There may be some modifications of these estimates, which are those of the New York produce exchange, but there can be no doubt of a demand and ready market for the surplus wheat of this country.

The circumstances which will militate against fancy prices are two, high freight rates and scarcity of money in England. The former will by so much reduce the quotations here, and the latter will cause a substitution of cheaper articles of food by the poorer and some other classes. The sympathy of the local market with those abroad has as yet produced no material reduction in prices here, the quotations ranging from $1 90@1 95 per cental. Buyers, however, are more cautious and some are holding back to await further development of the fluctuation which seems to be prevailing at present.

Other products remain at about last quotations except eggs which are selling at 35 cts and are scarce.
